

Telephones should have the same screening features as the computer where we are able to set the limit as to the type of calls we will receive. Since this is not possible at this time, the no-call list is the best current solution. Besides being on a no-call list (s), my phone number remains unlisted.